I distracted her and told her that someone was calling her since her phone was sitting next to her, when she looked down at the phone I lifted her off the railing for her safety. She assisted me by putting her arms around my shoulders and laughed. Ms. Hill stated that she was not suicidal and had already called a friend to give her a ride, who she was on the phone with. Ms. Hill stated that she has been feeling down but was adamant that she wasn't planning to jump or harm herself and that she wouldn't have called her friend for a ride if she wasn't ok. Ms. Hill stated that she had been drinking and made a poor choice to sit on the railing. I spent some time talking to Ms. Hill and she did not seem to be in a state of distress. Out of an abundance of caution I attempted to persuade Ms. Hill to allow me to transport her to the ER and just talk to a health care professional, but she once again denied that she was suicidal and stated that she had just made a poor decision to sit on the rail. Ms. Hill apologized for creating any issue for police and requested a ride to the friend's home at 1400 Chestnut St. I transported Ms. Hill per her request to her friend's home where she thanked me and was observed going inside.
